AEC Update Regarding COVID-19

The novel coronavirus (COVID-19) continues to affect the entire global community. The current situation is very fluid, with information changing several times a day. The health and safety of Automotive Electronics Council (AEC) members and Workshop participants are our first priority.

Based on the information currently available, the AEC has made the difficult decision to cancel the 2020 AEC Reliability Workshop currently scheduled for April 28-30 and reschedule for Q4-2020. All registered workshop attendees will be notified in the coming days. All attendees with room reservations for the April 28-30 timeframe should contact the Sheraton Novi Hotel (or other lodging facility used) to cancel their reservations.

The NEW date for the 2020 AEC Workshop is October 20-22 at the Sheraton Novi Hotel in Novi, Michigan. A revised Call for Presentations and complete Workshop Registration details reflecting the new 2020 AEC Workshop date of October 20-22 will be available soon. Please look for this updated information in your email and posted to the AEC website in the coming weeks.

The AEC Technical Committee will continue to closely monitor statements from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and World Health Organization (WHO), as well as federal government announcements concerning COVID-19.

Please contact the AEC Technical Committee with any questions or concerns.

We look forward to seeing you at the 2020 AEC Workshop in October!

Mark Kelly

Chairman, AEC Technical Committee
